The Evening Post Out in Favor of "Old Abe."

Several Little Stories By or About

President Lincoln,

[From the Evening Post, Feb. 17.]
It would be hardly necessary to inform the nation that our worthy President, in the midst of the anxieties of a tate of war that continually torture his mind, is wont to ind occasional relief in an appropriate anecdote or well unred lest.

patience at the bottom, that sometimes rose to the surface in a une droil, quaint saying or story, that forced a laugh over from himself.

FRE-IDENTIAL PUSS.

Mr. Lincoln, in his happier moments, is not always reminded of a "little story," but often indulges in a veritable joke. One of the latest reported is his remark when he found himself attacked by the varioloid. He had beer recoully very much worried by people asking favors. "Med.," said he, when the contagions disease was coming upon him, "Pive got something now that I can give to everybody." About the time when there was considerable grumbling as to the delay in forwarding to the trough the money due them, a Western paymaster, in full major's attire, was one day introduced at a public recention. "Being here, Mr. Lincoln," said he, "I thought I'd call and pay my respects," "From the complaints of the soldiers," respuded the President, "I guess that's about att any of you do pay"

It is told by a general correspondent who is probably "rollabe" that Mr. Lincola was wasking up Pennsylvania areaus the other day, relating "a little story" to Scoretary Seward, when the later called his attention to a new sign bearing the name of "T. R. Strong," "Ha" says Old Abe, his countenance lighting up with a pecuniar smile, "T. R. Strong, but coulce are stronger." Seward smile), but made no reply. We don't see how he could reply after so attroctous a thing as that

A gootleman, it is said, some time and hinted to the Fresident that it was deemed quite settled that he would accept a recommandation for his present office, whereupon Mr. Lincola was the day a story of Jesse Lubois, out in Illinois. Jesse, as State Auditor, had charge of the State House at Springfield. An Itanerate preacher came along and asked the use of it for a lecture.

"On what subject?" asked Jesse
"On the second coming of our Saviour," answered the long-daced Millerite.

"On shall retorted Uncle Jesse testify: "I guess if our Saviour had eyer been to Springfield, and had got away with his itie, he'd be of the republican ticket asserted, as a reason who of the republican ticket asserted, as a reason who considered the second begiven to him, that he had made Mr. 2010 if resident. "You made me President, did you," Mr. Linco n, with a twinkle of his eye. "I think I "said the applicant. "Then a precious mers you've me into, that's all," replied the President, and closed discussion.

river." Mr. Lincoln thinked the clergyman and laughed beartily.

One day, it is said, a distinguished New York official was at Washington, and in an interview with the President, introduces the question of emancipation. "Well, you see," and Mr. Lincoln, "we've got to be mighty cautious how we manage the negro quostion. If we're not, we shall be like, the barber out in lilimite, who was abaying a fellow with a batchet face and lantern jaws like mine. The barber put ma florer in his customer's mouth, to make his check whick out; but while shaving away he cut 'frough the fellow's check and cut off his own floger. If we don't play smart about the negro we shall do set the barber did."

It is greatly to the cred it so, the President that he has

As officer of the government called one day at the White House, and introduced a cierical friend. "Mr. President," said he, "allow me to present to you my friend, the Rev. Mr. F., of ——, Mr. F. has expressed a desire to see you and have some conversation with you, and I am happy to be the means of introducing him." The President shock hands with Mr. F., and, desiring him to be seated, took a seat himself. Thou—his countenance having assumed an expression of patient waiting—be said "I am now ready to hear what you have to say." of himse you, sir," said the Fr., ."I have nothing especially to say. I merely called to pay my respects to you, and, as one of the million, to assure you of my hearty sympathy and support." "My dear sir," said the President rising promptly—his face showing instant relief, and with both hands grasping that of his visitor—"I am very glad to see you. I am very glad to see you, indeed. I thought you had come to present to me!!

It is stated that he was much disgusted at the crowd of officers who some time ago used to loiter about the Washington hotels, and he is reported to have remarked to a member of Congress. "These follows and the Congress."

Another member of Congress was conversing with the President, and was somewhat annoyed-by the President's processing to divert attention from the serious subject he had on his unud by indicrous altusions.

"Mr. Lincolo." said be, "I think you would have your loke if you were within a mile of hell."

"Yes," said the President, "that is about the distance to the Capnot."

When informed that General Stoughton had been captured by the robels at Fairfax, the President is reported to have said that he did not mind the loss of the brigadier as much as he did the loss of the brigadier in five minutes, but the borses cost one hundred and twenty-five doilars a piece."

but the borses cost one bundred and twenty-five dollars a piece."

INQUESTIVENESS NONFLUSEED.

Mr Lincoln has a very effective way sometimes of deating with men who trouble him with questions. Some body asked him how many men the rebels had in the field. He reptied very seriously, "lewive hundred thousand, ascording to the best authority." The interrogator bisaches in the face, and caculated, "My food" "Yes, sir, twelve hundred thousand-ne doubt of it. You see, all of our generals, when they get whipped, say the enemy outcumbers them from three or five to one, and I must believe them. We have four hundred thousand men in the field, and three times four make twelve. Don't you see it?" The inquisitive man looked for his hat soon after "seeing it."

When the Sherman expedition which captured Port Royal was fitting out, there was great currently to learn where it had gone. A person visiting the chief magistrate at the White House importuned him to disclose the destination to him. "Will you keep it entirely secrety" asked the President. "Oh, yas, upon my honor." "Well," and the President, "I'll tell you." Assuming an air of great mystery, and drawing the man close to him, be kept him a moment awaiting the revelation with an open mouth and great anxiety. "Well," said he in a loud whisper, which was heard all over the room, "the expedition has gone to—sai."

When Generál Banks was fitting out his expedition to

When General Banks was fitting out his expedition to New Orleans it will be remembered that be used to answer all questions as to his destination with great frankness by saying that it was going south.

A REBUINK TO PROFILE ASKING TRIVIAL FAVORS.

A Virginia tarmer, not over patriotic, probably, importuned the treathent to use his influence to have a claim for damage doue to his farm by soldiers considered immediately. "Why, my dear sir," replied Mr. Liscoln blandly, "I couldn't think of such a thing. If I considered individual cases, I should find work enough for twenty Presidents!" "But," said the persevering sufferer, "couldn't you just give me a little to close!— about it, just one line?" "Ha, ha, ha!" responded Old Abe, "you remind me of old Jock Chase, out in Illinois." At this the crowd'huddied forward to listen. "You see Jock.—I knew him like a brother—used to be a lumberman on the lillinois, and he was steady and sober, and the best ratisman on the river. It was quite a trick twenty-five years ago to cake the logs over the rapids; but he was skilful with a raft and always kept her straight in the channel, Finally a stamboat was plunging and wallowing along the boiling current, and Jock's utmost vigilance was being exercised to keep her in the narrow channel, a boy pulled his coat tail and halled him with, "Say, Mater captain! I was you'd jest stop your best a minute—I've lost my apple overbeard!"

side of the road; then it hopped of to the other I looked out, and I haw the driver was jerking from side to side in his seat; so, says I, Judge, I think your cachman has been taking a little drop too much this morning. 'Well, I deciare, Lincoln,' said he, 'I should not much wonder if you are right, for he has nearly upset me half a dozen times since starting.' So, putting his head out of the window, he shouted, Why, you internal scenndrel, you are drunk." Lipm which, pulling up his horses, and turning round with great gravity, the coachman said, 'By gorral that's the first rightful decision you have given for the last twelvemonth."

A gentleman was telling at the White House how a friend of his had been driven away from New Orleans as a Unionist, and how, on his expulsion, when he asked to see the writ by which he was expelled, the deputation which called on him told him that the government had made up their minds to do nothing illegal, and so they had issued no illegal write, and simply meant to make him go of his own free will. "Well," said Mr.*Lincoln, "that reminds me of a hotel keeper down at St. Jouis, who boasted that he never had a death in his bottel, for whenever a guest was dying in his house he carried him out to die in the street."

A man from New York tells of an interview he had with the President, "How are you?" said he. "I saw your card, but did not see you. I was glad, however, that you carded me, and I was reminded of an anecdote of Mr. Whittlesey, When Mr. Cox, then a young man, first came here, Mr. Whittlesey said, however, that you carded me, first, and then comb them. "It is no joking matter, sir," said Mr. Whittlesey, seriously, "It is your duty to card the Senators, sir, and it scustomary, I believe, to card the Cabinet also, and you ought to define the president of rexamination, by the bushel basketistil, Mr. Lincoln came upon one wherein the claims of a certain worthy (not in the service at all) "for a general-ship" were glowingly set forth. But the applicant did not apecily whether

That's the long and short of it."

TWO INSTANCES WIRRE THE PRESIDENT WAS NOT REMINDED OF A SIORY.

The President is naturally enough a good deal bantered about his habit of atory-telling.

Dr. Hovey, of Pansville. N. Y., called at the White House, and tound the occupant on horseback, ready for a ride. He approached and said — "President Lincoln, I thought I would call and see you before teaving the cuty, and hear you tell a story." The President greeted him pleasansty, and asked where he was from. The reply was, "From Western New York" "Well, that's a good enough country without stories," replied the President, and on he rode.

Some moral philosopher was telling the President one enough country without stories," replied the President, and oil he rode.

Some moral philosopher was tolling the President one day about the undercurrent of public opinion. He went on to explain it at length and drew an illustration from the sloditerranean Sea. Ihn current seemed very curious by to flow in both from the Plack Sea and the Atlantic occur: but a shrewd Yankee, by means of a contrivance or floats, had discovered that at the outlet into the Atlantic only about thirty feet of the surface water flowed invard, while there was a tremendous current under that flowing out. "Well," said Mr. Lincoin, much bored, "that don't romind me of any story I ever heard of." The philosopher despaired of making a serious impression by his argument, and left.

codification of the Revenue bays. In connection with this subject the following letter was read by the Secre-tary of the Chamber from Mr. Secretary Chase:—

THE NIAGARA SHIP CANAL COMPANY.

A letter was received from Hon, Sidney P. Ingraham submitting a draft of a bill to incorporate a Niagara Ship Canal Company, and asking the Camber's opinion on the subject. The runter was referred to the same committee and the left matter was referred.

Canal Company, and seking the Chamber's opinios on the subject. The ristler was referred to the same committee ag the last matter.

Hon. S. B. RUGGIES called the attention of the Chamber to the variety of weights and measures, and urged the necessity of some action by the Chamber, and the propriety of giving the matter in charge of a committee to be appointed; but the matter was dropped.

Mr. Corklins moved the appointment of five members to act in conjunction with the members of the commission appointed by Secretary thase to codify the Revenue laws. The following gentlemen were nominated:—

John C. Green, A. A. Low, George F. Thomas, Elias C. Wade, Jr., A. W. Bradford.

JONATHAN STURGES, Eq., calling attention to the robbery of the thousand dollars at the Custom House, effect the following resolution, which was adopted:—

Resolved, That it would greatly facilitate the commercial transactions of this city, so far as they are necessarily connected with the movements of gold, if the Honorable Secretary of the Treasury would allow the Assistant Treasurer to receive gold on deposit, and to issue certificates for the same, receivable for duties at the Custom House, and that this Chamber earnestly recommend the adoption of this system.

After the transaction of some minor business the Chamber adjourned.

A Same Souder Kidnarrad—The Perfectances in Custom.—On Wednesday evening officer Williamson, of the Fifth precinct, while patrolling his beat, received information that a colored man was detained against his will in the dance house. No. 164 Church street, kept by two men named 64.792 Cornelius and William Bragden, both negroes. The officer accordingly entered the house, and, on making a search, found 'a negro stowed away in an attic bedroom, where he had been forcibly detained by the dance boose keepers. The negro, after reaching the station house, gave the name of Nathan Gerah, and said he belonged to Company I, Twelfth regiment Connecticut infantry, that he enlisted as a cook, and had been in most of the battles in and near New Orleans for nearly two years. He also said that his regiment had re-enlisted, and returned to Hartford for recruit, A few days ago he obtained leave of absence to visit some friends in Bridgeport. On leaving the cars at that place Bragdon and others advised him to desert and go to New York, with them. Gersh spursed the proposition, and when turning away Bragdon and his gang seized and forced him aboard a train of cars, which started off soon afterwards. Arriving in this city, Gersh was taken to Caurch street, and there foroibly detained till liberated by the officer. Captain Petty, of the Fifth precinct, being apprized of all the facts in the case, ordered the arrest of Bragdon and Cornelius, and they were subsequently taken before General Dix, who will give the subject that Consideration which it demands.

ARREST OF PRINCE SALE SALE.—Prince Salm Salm, formerly commender of one of the German volunteer regiments from this city, was taken into custody yesterregiments from this city, was taken into custody yesterday by officer Ennis, one of the government detectives attached to the office of Provost Marshai General Hays. The unit for the apprehension of the Prince emanated from the instance of General Dix, no formation having been received there that his Highness was practising certain manocurres not consistent with the welfare of the public service. Among the things preferred against the Prince are the grave charges that he has been representing himself as the Colonel of the Sixty eighth regiment New York Volunteers, and raising funds from verdant young officers desirous of obtaining commissions in the same regiment. The officials at General Hays' office are not very communicative relative to the cause of Prince Saim Saim's arrest; but it is believed that the above charges have been the principal reasons why he has been deprived of his liberty for the present. The charges will be duly examined without delay, and if not substantiated, of course the Prince will be allowed to go free once more, and have an opportunity of punishing his defamors.
